On Wednesday, March 22nd, in the CISCO auditorium Mr. Dar Mayweather, leadership studies professor at University of North Carolina Wilmington, visited Georgia Gwinnett College (GGC) and led an inclusive leadership workshop titled 'Can We All Get Along?'.

About 60 students and faculty were in attendance as Mr. Mayweather delivered a talk about helping students discover their natural gifts and talents. "All have privileged, marginalized identities," said Mr. Mayweather, "And we all need training on how to be more inclusive of those."

"Getting students to that 'Aha!' moment in leadership training, and sharing that joy with them," stated Mr. Mayweather "Is one of the most important things. It allows people to be imperfect."

This was the first of five guest speaker events in HACER CAMINOS, a series on "making ways for students," said Diana Gonzalez, HACER Student Success Advisor.

Students interested in the next events can reach out to HACER directly at: hacer@ggc.edu

Mr. Dar Mayweather has over 15 years of experience in higher education leadership, and is currently pursuing a doctorate in education leadership. He is also the founder and CEO of Good Mayweather

Consulting.
